

Wisconsin 2006

ILEC Packet Switching Availability

Packet Switches are used for transferring large amounts of data quickly and efficiently. These packet switches are shown as reported on the regulated side of the network. Additional packet switches are in place on the deregulated side of the network, including those used for Internet and long-distance traffic. That deployment, on the deregulated side of the network, is not available to the Commission.